Modernization (1855-1954)

In the 100-year period since our pioneer ancestors came to Iowa, it is rather astonishing to contemplate the enormous changes that these pioneers and their children have observed.

There was the constant introduction of new and more laborsaving machinery, which really accelerated with the introduction of the tractor. Virtually all later improvements in planting and harvesting stemmed from the introduction of this mobile power unit. Even so, Mother Hazel tells of the struggle with AW Savage when Father Roy wanted to buy his first tractor.

There was the introduction of the automobile. Mother relates that Grandpa Ed had his "Overland" when she was in High School in the 1915-20's. I'm sure that Roy and Hazel had an early car or two, but the car I remember most was the Oldsmobile that came to the family by way of AW Savage.

The coming of electricity probably resulted in the greatest labor-saving advances of all, when you consider that suddenly not just the men of the family, but the housewives had many more labor saving devices.

Consider Grandpa Ed and Grandma Effie. They say the coming of the radio, the telephone, the movies, the auto in all its variations, the tractor with its assorted attachments, atomic energy and the first A-bomb, beginning television, airplanes, cement roads, and much more, all came about in this 100 year period. Not to mention living through the Spanish-American War, WWI, WWII, and the Korean War. Also not to mention the great depression.

I've often thought that as we examine our family histories over this 100-year period, that this had to be the most rapid period of technological advances of any age in history. And for those of you who knew Grandpa Ed and Grandma Effie, along with Roy and Hazel, I think we could all agree that these immediate ancestors were able to adapt quite well to all the changes. And it seems that these technologies build on each other so there is a kind of acceleration of technology in our lives. Some of us have to choose just what to adopt and just what to ignore. Like, do I really need to learn how to set the time on my VCR? And it seems like the more labor saving devices we adopt, the busier we become. Suddenly, we don't seem to ever have enough time.

I think of our original David and Julie Phillips, James and Almira Richardson, Albert and Charlotte Todd, William and Helen Bruce, Milton and Nancy Stimson. Most spent weeks and months on the trails to Iowa. Their challenges were to erect housing, build homesteads, raise crops and livestock, maintain the horses, and raise the children, all without any of these modern conveniences. Somehow, they overcame the obstacles and built homes and lives for themselves.

You could visit the remaining homesteads and you would find few reminders of the old settlers. Virtually everything material that was constructed is gone, from early homes, farmsteads, schools, and churches. As mechanization progressed, the need for sons and daughters to remain on the farm declined. Children and families moved on.
